The job market in Malaysia is set to expand further with technological growth and the influx of foreign investors attracted to the facilities and infrastructure, according to a job recruitment agency.

"Our youths should capitalise on this. Put your foot in the door and do not be choosy about jobs. Experience the excitement. Fast-growing Malaysia with its infrastructure is encouraging foreign investors to come," Marie Lam, country manager of Adecco Personnel Sdn Bhd said yesterday.

Lam said a major problem that hindered job seekers from being employed was their inability to express themselves during interviews, while fresh graduates take for granted that employers would hire them. She said those who had found jobs should adopt a lifelong learning habit to continually improve themselves and try out new work.

Jobs DB Malaysia general manager Shahrul Hameed Dawood said there were still jobseekers who did not know that they could look for jobs on the Internet apart from the newspapers.

"There are job vacancies available online." Shahrul said there was a need for job seekers to think laterally and not confine themselves to a specific field when looking for a job.

Organising chairman Datuk Liow Tiong Lai said the expo was organised to help youths find suitable jobs in line with the MCA's drive to inculcate the lifelong learning culture among the people.

PART C

Answer ALL questions in Answer Booklet.

WATER EVERYWHERE
I	Every child in a decent kindergarten learns how to rinse his brushed teeth with just a small cup of water since leaving the water running while brushing one's teeth wastes six litres of water per minute. However, many grown-ups pay no heed to this because they are unaware of just how much water runs through bathroom sink faucets.
II	If they really stopped to visualise the four big mineral-water-sized bottles suddenly appearing for every minute the tap is running, most people would probably think twice about how careless and reckless they are when they turn the tap. In fact, a dripping tap can waste up to 5, 000 liters of water a year. Since adults are advised to drink at least two litres water a day, the 5,000 liters of water that drips down the sink represents nearly seven years' worth of an adult's daily water requirement.
III	Yet, living in a country where seasonal heavy rains can bring floods anywhere, it is easy to forget that droughts can and do happen here, too. And when the droughts do come, people suffer and complain about having to spend their time lining up for water-delivery trucks, and then having to carry heavy buckets of water home.
IV	Living in a country that is blessed with plentiful rain, it is often easy that water is not a readily obtainable resource all over the world, and that, for many, walking to a distant water source and carrying heavy buckets of water is a daily and permanent fixture of life. Around the world, lack of access to clean and safe water kills more children annually than AIDS, malaria and measles combined.
