SECTION BPART 1

This part consists of TWELVE (12) questions.

Read the following passage and answer the questions that follow.

- 1 Vitamin C plays a crucial role in our health. It helps to build and maintain our tissues and fortify our immune systems. Vitamin C is water-soluble, which means it is excreted from the body every day and cannot be stored for later use. Therefore, we should aim to get Vitamin C in our daily diet. A study showed that taking vitamin C can reduce health rates by as much as 42 per cent for men and 10 per cent for women who have taken it in high doses. 5

- 2 The study was conducted by the UCLA School of Public Health and published in the Journal of Epidemiology. Its findings showed that there is a co-relationship between the increasing intake of vitamin C and a decline in cardiovascular diseases. The researchers spoke to a sampling of 11, 348 10 American adults in the 10-year follow-up study. The researchers found that men who took a relatively high intake of vitamin C were 45 per cent less likely to die of heart disease than those who ingested small amounts of vitamin C.

- 3 The researchers also noted that the claims that Vitamin C improves health are not new. Potatoes, leafy vegetables and citrus fruits such as oranges 15 and pineapples are well-known sources of natural vitamin C. Fish and milk also contain small amounts of vitamin C. Many people who believe that natural food sources do not contain enough vitamin C take it supplementary form, either as tablets or capsules especially when warding off colds and flu. However, data and findings on long-term health effects of high doses of 20 Vitamin C have been sparse and inconclusive.

- 4 Researchers claimed that there is no other study to date which is as comprehensive as the one conducted by UCLA. This is because it involved factors such as age and gender of the subjects and other variables such as smoking and medical history. The researchers concluded that their findings 25 support earlier indications that a high intake of vitamin C and another antioxidant vitamins such as A and E can reduce the risk of hardening arteries.

- 5 The new research also supports the previously documented trends showing the correlation between higher consumption of vitamin C and significantly reduced age-adjusted death rates that are only partly explained by declines in 30 cholesterol levels. Surveys have shown that about a quarter of all US adults take vitamin supplements daily and about half use them less regularly. The most common supplement is vitamin C. It is also nutrient most likely consumed in great quantities, exceeding the Recommended Dietary Allowance of 60 mg per day.

- 6 The UCLA researchers looked back at examination records of adults aged 35 between 25 and 74 years from 1971 to 1974 when conducting the study. They also followed up mortality rates through 1984. Data showed that 1,809 people in the sampling died during that time. The group in the study that had the highest intake of daily supplements of vitamin C took it primarily in the form of multivitamin pills. A majority of them consumed several hundred milligrams a 40 day of vitamin C

1. What is the main purpose of this article?
- A. to reveal the benefits of vitamin C.
 - B. to encourage people to consume vitamin C.
 - C. to warn readers of the side effects of vitamin C.
 - D. To urge researches to conduct more tests on vitamin C.
- (1 mark)
2. Which one is the rationale of claimining the UCLA research to be the most complete and all – inclusive?
- A. it was carried out over a decade
 - B. it involved hardwork and dedication
 - C. it reported new and useful findings of vitamin C
 - D. it examined various subjects and other health – related factors
- (1 mark)
3. Which of the following statements is true about vitamin C?
- A. If taken in high doses, it can harden the arteries.
 - B. If consumption of vitamin C is too high, it can be fatal.
 - C. It can be taken in the form of pills and from natural sources.
 - D. It is not recommended for those who have cholesterol problems.
- (1 mark)
4. Which group of people are involved in the research?
- A. Non–smoking adults of all ages
 - B. Both children and adults of both genders
 - C. Adult of both genders and of different ages
 - D. Senior citizens of both genders with differing health issues
- (1 mark)
5. Which best defines the word sparse as it is used in the third (3) paragraph?
- A. insufficient
 - B. informative
 - C. incomplete

PART 2

This part consists of TWO (2) questions.

Question 1

Read the following text. Then, answer questions (a) - (j).

Car Theft and Its Precautions

- 1 Car theft is a constant problem, but if you own a newer model of car, there is more difficult of it being stolen. Modern cars have security systems that help prevent theft. However, thieves often steal car keys to access newer vehicles so it is a good policy to know where your keys are at all times. Never leave them in your car, even if it is parked in your garage at home. You make life easy for the burglar if you leave keys in a receptacle just inside the door or hanging from a hook. Think of a less obvious place, hidden from view. Once a thief has access to your keys, your personal safety would be threaten. 5

- 2 While older cars are a potential target, there are some simple precautions you should take. Definitely, lock your car before you leave it, even for the shortest time, even in the driveway of your house. Think of installing an alarm or a steering lock or consider a mechanical immobilizer that fits across the steering wheel. This is a relatively inexpensive item but it is a good deterrent for thieves. They generally go for the easiest and fastest option. 10

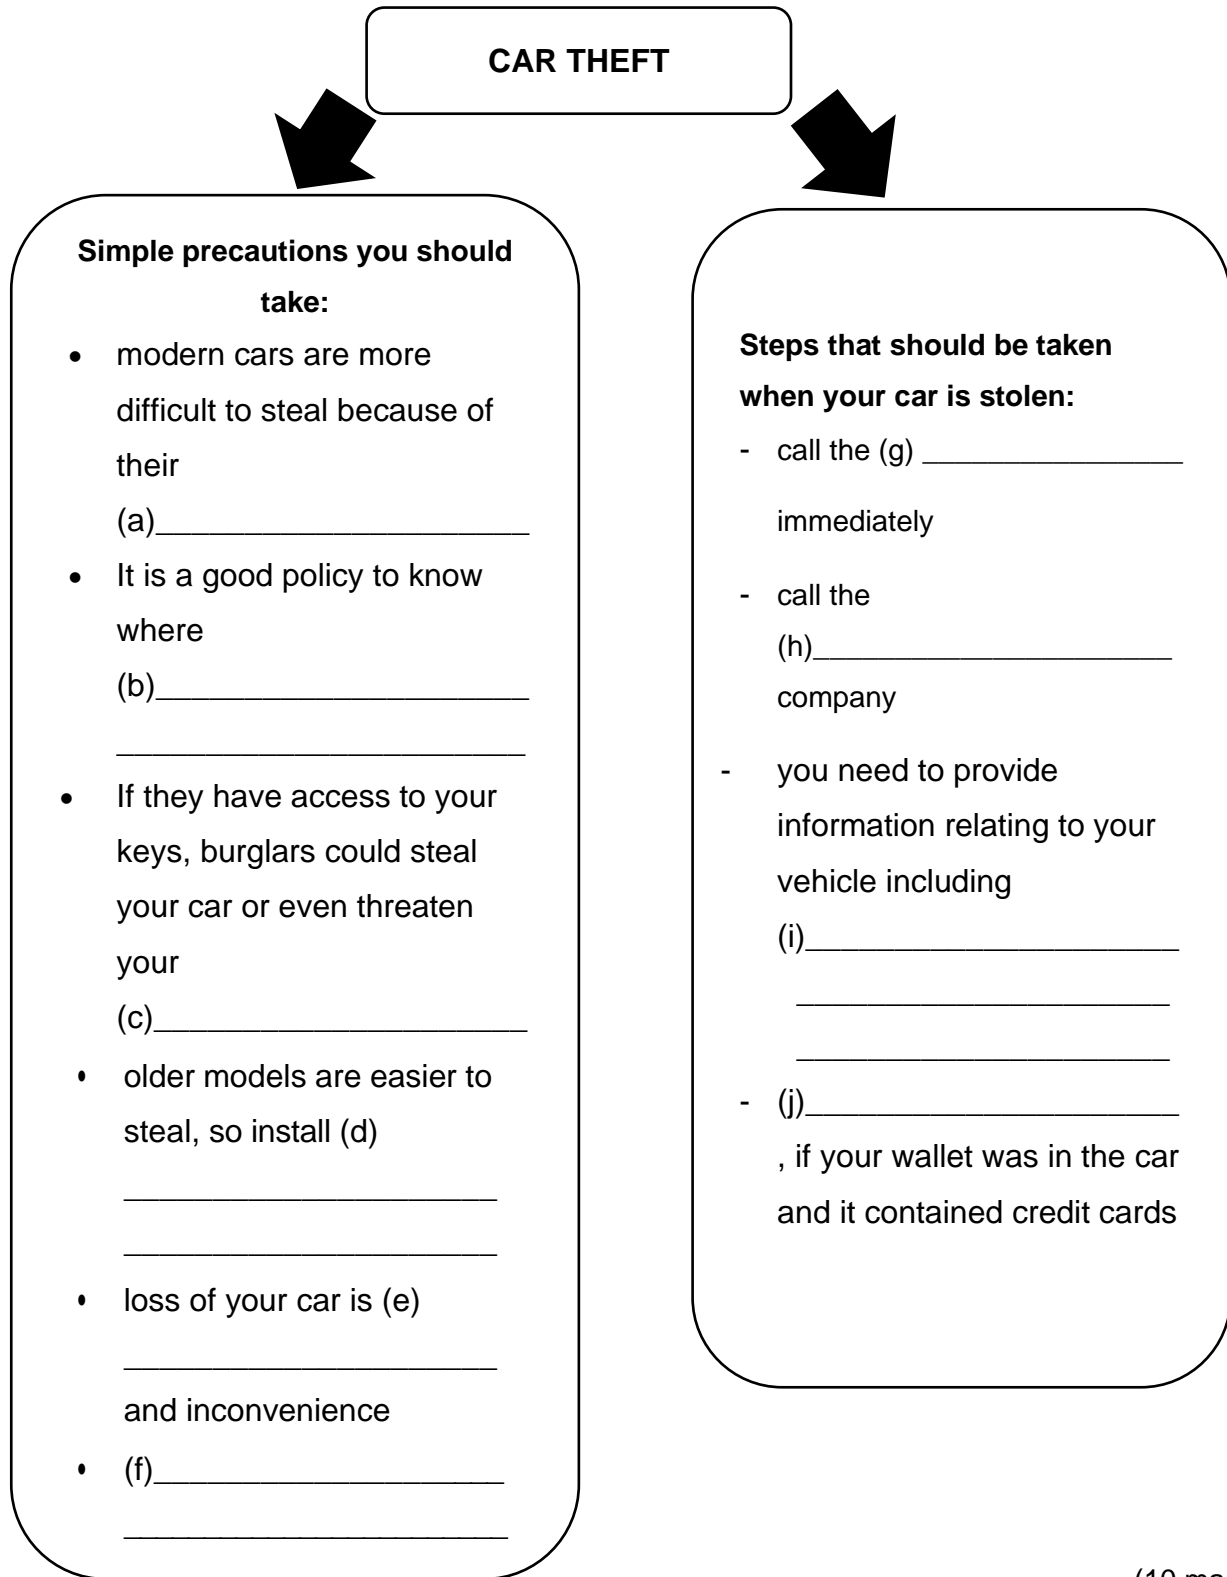

- 3 Obviously, it is in your own interest to make your vehicle as difficult to steal as possible – not only to avoid stress and inconvenience, but also because your insurance premiums will soar if you make a claim. If you are unfortunate enough to have your vehicle stolen, call the police immediately. You will need to provide information relating to your vehicle including make, model, year, colour, registration number and VIN (vehicle identification number). You need all of this when you file a stolen vehicle report. Police will also log any personal items that were in the vehicle. If these items include identifying documents such as a registration certificate, this will make the illegal resale of the vehicle simpler for the thieves, so keep these documents 20

In a separate place.

- 4 Next, contact your insurance company. If your wallet was in the car and it contained 25 credit cards, you will need to notify your bank. If your house keys were in the car, call a locksmith and have your locks changed, and if you are still making payments on the car, you will need to inform the finance company. Both your insurance company and the finance company will ask you for copies of the police report so it is best to obtain one in the first instance.

Question 2

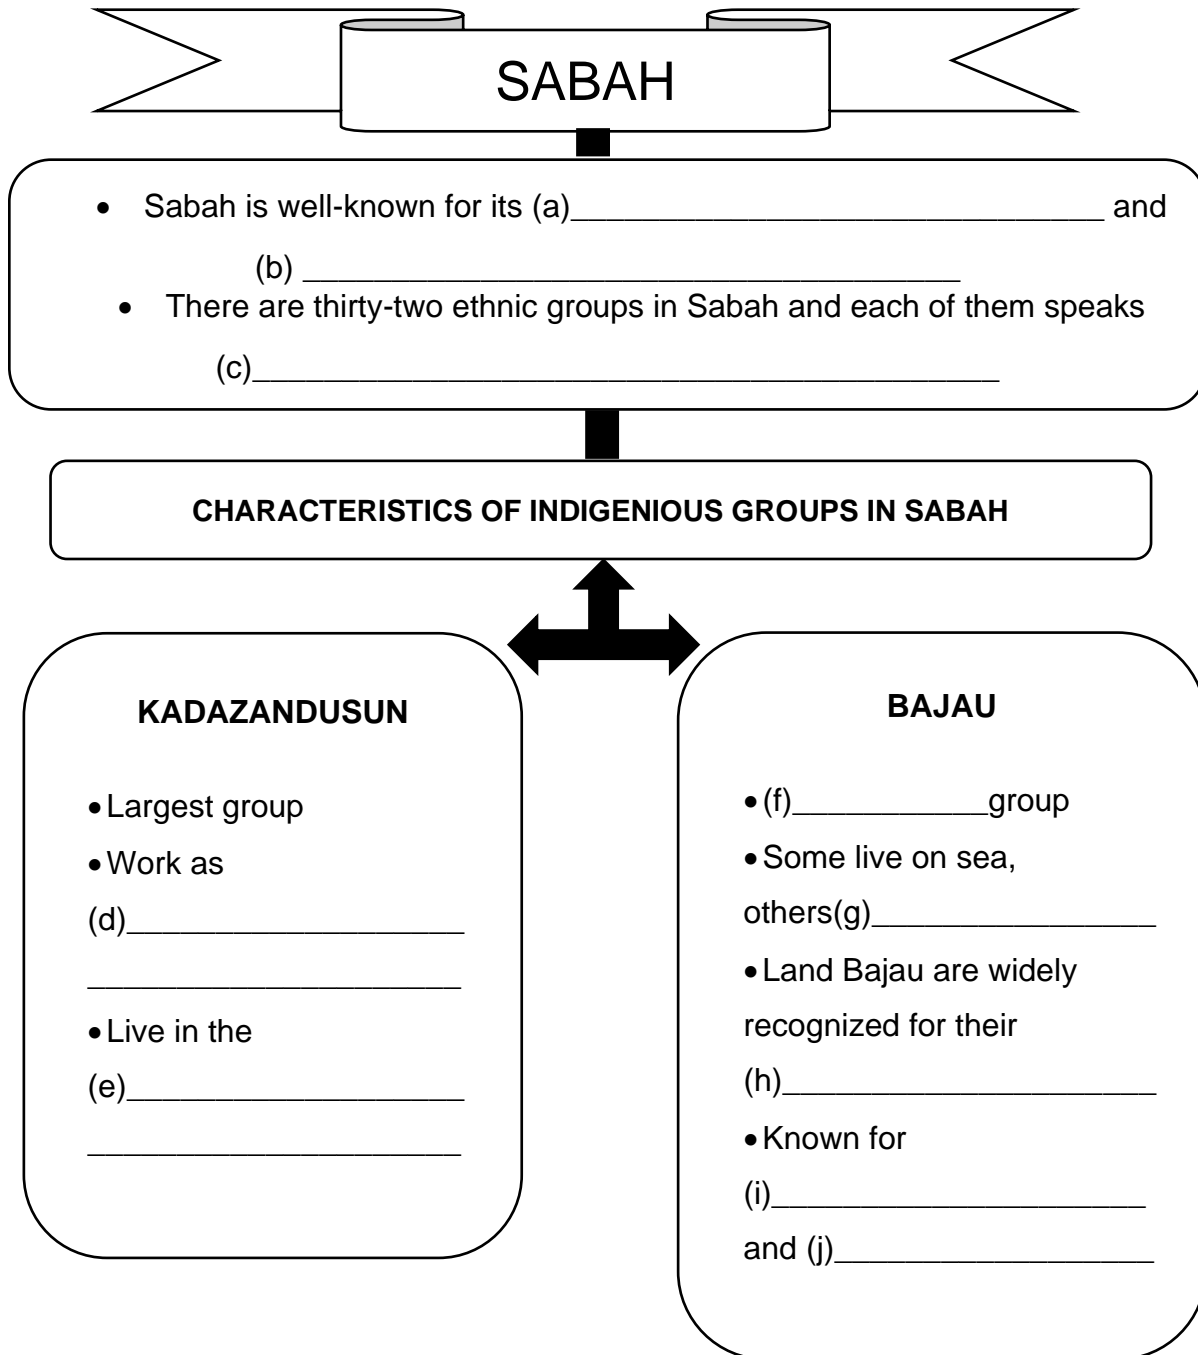

Read the following text. Then, answer questions (a) – (j)

- 1 Sabah is famous not just for its spectacular natural beauty but also its diverse culture. There are thirty-two different ethnic groups and each of them speaks a different language. The rich cultural heritage of the people of Sabah is sure to dazzle and amaze you as you visit the “Land Below the Wind”.

- 2 The Kadazandusun, being the largest indigenous group in Sabah, make up 30 per cent 5 cent of the population. They traditionally work as paddy and vegetable planters. The Kadazandusun ancestral heartland lies in the hill and upland valley areas of Sabah. Hence, they live a secluded life largely free outside influence. Their society is defined by close kinship, with family being the most important unit, followed by the he village. In the past, headhunting was practised as a form of self-defence. One 10 notable feature of the Kadazandusun culture is the unique Harvest Festival or Kaamatan where the Kadazandusun community would give thanks to the Rice Spirit for a bountiful harvest.

- 3 The second largest group of Sabah people is the Bajau people, who were once known as the sea-gypsies as they were originally seafaring nomads. They lived their 15 whole lives on boats, the ‘lipa-lipa’ and they were very skilful at navigating the sea in their small boats even though they had no compasses. Then, the Bajau only come to land to collect firewood, get water and bury their dead. Consequently, over the past few hundred years, some Bajau have settled on the mainland, particularly along the east coast of Sabah. The land Bajau’s expertise in horseback riding is legendary 20 throughout Sabah. They are well known as Sabah’s own cowboy horsemen. One interesting feature about this unique group is that their horses have their own own costumes and are even better dressed than the riders. These people are also famous for their beautiful needlework and woven handicrafts.
